

« I'm Yohan Dumortier a multi disciplinary product designer, I have experience working on various products for design agencies and private companies. I like to find the best way to solve a problem with the integration of all forms of design. This results in the creation of functional products with each their own identity. »

« I'm also an amateur photographer. Photography is for me a way to transpose the atmospheres of the places encounter during my travel, but also during the everyday life. I like to keep my camera within easy reach because I prefer to catch an unexpected moment than waiting to have the best shot. I love to be surprised by all these details which reveal itself afterwards and give all the meaning to the shot. View my pictures on www.wildpics.fr. »
